Male Sexual Predators in U.S. Jurisdictions with SOGI Laws

1. Cops say sex offender molested girl at Leesburg mall Leesburg, FL, Jan 30, 2017

Eustis man was charged with molesting a 9-year-old girl in a bowling alley restroom at Via Port Florida mall in Leesburg on Sunday afternoon. Officers arrived just before 6:30 p.m. and met up with the manager, the victim and her mother. The girl was crying but was able to tell officers that after she closed the door to the bathroom stall and sat down on the toilet, Cody Michael Smith crawled underneath the stall and began touching and rubbing her thighs. "The victim stated she does not know the defendant and was scared of the defendant and did not know what to do. The victim stated the defendant kept saying 'he was sorry' while touching her but did not stop," the police report said.

14. Man arrested after camera found in restaurant bathroom
Miami, FL, March 1, 2016

Beyond the outer walls of La Perla, inside the women's bathroom, is where a customer said she found a recording device facing the direction of the restaurant's toilet. The woman was assisting her child in the bathroom off Southwest 152nd Street and Southwest 137th Avenue Saturday when, according to a Miami police report, she noticed a strange device tucked away under the sink. She took it apart and took it to her husband at the table.

She started researching on her phone to see what it was and determined that it was an advanced motion sensor camera. The couple confronted employees before speaking to the manager, Hajime Maruyana, 42. The mother demanded to see what was on the camera as Maruyana walked from the back rooms of the restaurant to the front. She later noticed the camera's memory chip was missing. But Maruyana claims it was never there. Police were called and arrested Maruyana on charges of tampering with evidence and resisting arrest without violence.

15. *In Waltham Mass: Female office worker encounters man urinating in ladies' room and exposing self.

Waltham, MA, February 21, 2016

Yes, the "bathroom bill" danger is real. This is just one of many first-hand accounts we've heard. Here is what a female office worker recently told Mass Resistance:

“There was no doubt it in my mind that the man was back, apparently dressed as a woman. I hurried to finish and as soon as I unlocked the door, I heard the man next to me get up. I got out of there quickly before he could see me. I couldn’t get out of there fast enough. Having a strange man in a public restroom unclothe himself less than a foot from you, while you are unclothed as well, is horribly uncomfortable and scary on many levels, as well as against the law – at least for now!”

Daily Signal, available at <http://dailysignal.com/2016/01/25/sexual-assault-victims-speak-out-against-washingtons-transgender-bathroom-policies/>. YMCA Communications Director resigns, 300 families cancel membership due to YMCA policy allowing men into women's restrooms. Prior to the statewide YMCA policy, the YMCA in Pierce County began allowing "transgender" members to use the locker room of their choosing. When the policy was formally written, the communications director (a sexual assault victim) told her superiors that she could not support this decision. YMCA asked her to resign, and promised 10 weeks' severance if she kept quiet. After 300 households canceled their memberships over the new policy, in September 2015, YMCA scaled it back to try to appease the members that were leaving. By December 2015, however YMCA had reinstated the policy of allowing men in women's lockers (and vice versa), stating that it was simply following state law.

Benson was arrested at an aquatic park when he went inside dressed as a woman and made contact with a little girl in the ladies locker room. He had been caught in the women's dressing room at an Oregon athletic club; a dressing room at Portland's Mt. Scott Community Center in 2007, and was again caught in a women's dressing room at a Nordstrom store in 2009, all dressed in women's attire. <https://allisonslaw.wordpress.com/tag/thomas-lee-benson/> Benson said he wants people to know he's addicted to cross-dressing and he's vowed to stop; however he is not certain he can change. "My drug of choice is women's clothing," he said. "The high I get is by having people look at me and say, 'You are a woman.'" "Yes I have done things in the past that are bad, but I would also remind people I do not go around having sex with young girls anymore, and I have not been doing that in over 15 years," he said.

43. Cross-dressing man arrested for exposure at Walmart
Atlanta, GA, March 25, 2010

A 51-year-old man wearing women's clothing was arrested for allegedly undressing in front of children at Walmart. Police say Norwood Smith Burnes, 51, of Rome, has a long record of indecent exposure and was on probation for public indecency when the latest incident occurred in the women's bathroom at Walmart in Calhoun, the Rome News-Tribune reported. Burnes was in "stages of undress while on the stone floor and would do this in the presence of several young children," witnesses told police.

When police arrived, they found Burnes wearing a short skirt and jacket, black leather coat, high heels, red nail polish, green eye shadow and jewelry. This is the one example in this series where the acts of a sexual predator were committed in a jurisdiction that did not have SOGI law. However, an ordinance like Jacksonville's 2016-1 or 2016-2, if passed, would give this and other sexual predators cover to access women's bathrooms, changing rooms, and locker rooms without challenge

53. Shopper Upset Man Allowed to Use Women's Dressing Room in Ross Mesquite, TX, May 17, 2016
A Forney woman says a Ross department store in Mesquite let a man into the women's dressing room Monday. "I was in the dressing room, when we heard a man's voice," said Lisa Stickles, who says she quickly told a manager. "She went inside the dressing room, came right back out and called me to the side and told me... he was representing himself as a woman today," Stickles said. "What about me? Or my feelings?" said Sickles. "(The manager) told me that if I felt uncomfortable in the dressing room with him there... I'd have to wait until he's finished."

Sickles said she waited, and was shocked when she watched the man walk out.

"He was in no way dressed as a woman," Sickles said. "He had on jeans, a t-shirt, 5 o'clock shadow, very deep voice. He was a man." Other large retailers across North Texas have varying policies on transgender customers who want to use the restrooms or changing rooms.

Target, TJ Maxx and Marshalls allow customers to decide based on gender identity, according to customer service. Representatives from Kohl's say their store require customers to use facilities aligned with their biological gender. Walmart had no specific policy, according to customer service.

56. *Convicted sex offender seeks access to women's locker rooms through bathroom law

Nebraska, February 25, 2016

Transgender activists have sounded off in recent weeks claiming that they are being unfairly characterized by those concerned about locker room privacy and safety following the launch of the Just Want Privacy campaign. Proponents of repealing the open bathroom rule have repeatedly said that their concern is not that the transgender community is going to harm women and children, but that it creates opportunity for those who would seek access to places they don't belong. Seattle-based transgender rights activist Johanna Wolf has been among the most vitriolic in her responses to privacy activists, claiming that it's only their "hatred" and "bigotry" that is trying to keep her and others out of the locker rooms and showers. Recently we have discovered that Johanna used to be a man, Jonathan Adrian Wolf, who is a sex-offender convicted of raping a 20-year old deaf girl in Nebraska in 2006.

Why is this relevant? Because a sex-offender is now seeking access to a woman's locker room through this open bathroom policy. Wolf, now identifying as a woman \(view the name change document here\), appears to be shocked and offended that people in Washington want to take away "her" rights to use the locker room and shower of "her" choice.
